

Jim Flanagan retired from education and took his experiences on the road in the form of stories. He was a Hall of Fame principal and coach.

He is well known for his character education stories.

In the 12 years, he has been telling he has become a member of the “Artists in Schools’ through the Greater Columbus arts council, placed Second in the National Storytelling Competition, written three award winning children’s books.

He has told stories and done writing workshops throughout Ohio, Pennsylvania, Washington D C, Virginia and Ireland

Jim teaches writing at The James Thurber Writing Academy at Thurber House.

Jim’s library telling include the Toledo Libraries, Lancaster, Oh Libraries and the Washington DC Libraries.

His fees are $100 FOR A 40-45 minute show. No mileage is charged to libraries.

You can contact him at 740-412-1496 or email him at jirish@ohiohills.com

Check out his website: www.positivetales.org